

Adam Niewood Endorsement

Adam Niewood plays an AMMA Gold 9

“The AMMA is a truly wonderful mouthpiece. I like it more and more each day. I could easily use it in any professional situation and my Link blows dead after trying yours for a while.

After playing the Stable-Wood PARVATI 8 and the Reticulated Gold Plate PARVATI 9, I am now thoroughly inspired by your products. You have confused the heck out of me - I don't know which one I like better? They're all great!

Playing only vintage mouthpieces (mainly a Florida Super Tone Master Otto Link 8*) I would never have considered playing a new mouthpiece, until NOW!

As a professional saxophonist, and mouthpiece refacer - my hat goes off to you and your products, Theo. Top notch on every level!!! A brand new, stock out-of-the-box mouthpiece that measures 100% accurately, and plays flawlessly. I didn't think I'd see the day... You're a renaissance man!” - Adam Niewood

Adam Niewood Biography –

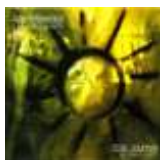

By the time Adam he was five years old, he had tagged along with his "Old Man" on two world tours with Simon & Garfunkel, and Liza Minnelli. After sitting in with the Chuck Mangione Big band in high school (which included Don Menza, and Steve Gadd) Adam was hooked and decided to play professionally. Adam later earned his BA in Music performance at the Berklee College of music. From 2000 – 2003 Adam was the professor of Saxophone, Jazz History, and small Ensembles at Montclair State University. In 2005 Adam graduated with a Masters Degree in Jazz Performance from the Manhattan School of music.

Currently Adam is playing original experimental music in New York, traveling with many bands, playing clubs, and presenting clinics at schools across the country. Aside from Adam's own project "The Rabble Rousers," you can hear Adam as a sideman with Bill Goodwin's bands, Grupa Janke Randalu Nathan Peck's The Voip, Scott Reeves, Id Trio (w/ Rohin Khemani and Noah Jarrett), Matt Brewer's Band with Jeff Tain Watts or Gerald Cleaver... It all depends on the day. Check out www.niewood.com / or www.myspace.com/niewood for more information on what Adam is doing, and where he's playing next.
